

I understand that LPFM may take precedence over current FM translator services. This greatly concerns me because I listen only to K-LOVE and have chosen, on an extremely limited budget, to support them financially. They wake me in the morning, encourage me all day long, have seen me through some of the roughest events of my life (divorce, death, children moving away from home), and they lift my Spirit anytime I tune in. I know many people who depend on K-LOVE for the above reasons, and I know of people who have heard something or someone on K-LOVE that caused them to change a choice of action that could have caused serious harm to themselves and others. In a world where there is so much pain, K-LOVE goes above and beyond to reach out to people. I have personally sent them a few emails- brief comments of thanks and appreciation, and I ALWAYS get a response- and one that is specific and personal to the message I sent. K-LOVE's positive and encouraging message is desperately needed by all, and to think that it could be gone, well...one morning, K-LOVE didn't come on my radio as usual...and for a few brief moments, I thought I might have been "left behind". Though I quickly learned I wasn't, I don't want that to happen again...to be without K-LOVE. Some people have no other opportunity to be encouraged in their lives other than by K-LOVE. They may not have the opportunity to share their need with you because they don't know of this possible change in airwaves. To assume that what K-LOVE provides for people all over the country is of little importance because you may not get an email or letter from them is to say you have the power to know what does or does not benefit all people and you can't know that. You cannot know the full impact of your actions, and to deny those of us who greatly value K-LOVE is wrong. I strongly urge you to leave K-LOVE on the air.
